

Information for patients without a Medicare Card

Do I need to pay for treatment?

You must pay for treatment if you:

- do not have a Medicare card, or
- are not covered by a Reciprocal Healthcare Agreement

Patients without Medicare are 'Medicare ineligible'.

I have a Medicare card but did not bring it today.

Why do I have to acknowledge costs?

You must bring your Medicare card to every hospital visit. If we don't have your Medicare number on file, we will send you an invoice.

If you can provide your Medicare number after treatment, we will cancel your invoice. We can also contact Medicare to search for your card number with your consent.

The following Medicare ineligible patients may not need to pay:

- asylum seekers, immigration detainees or refugees
- patients being diagnosed or treated for COVID-19, tuberculosis, leprosy or HIV
- organ or tissue donors

Ask our staff for more information.

I have insurance. Why do I need to pay?

Patients with insurance must pay all costs of treatment upfront in the Emergency Department and Outpatient Clinics of our HHS. We will send you a receipt for claiming. Not all insurance funds will pay the entire amount. We recommend you contact your insurer at the earliest opportunity.

I was in a work accident. Do I need to pay?

If you are Medicare ineligible and do not have an approved workers' compensation claim, you must pay for treatment. If your claim is later approved, we will refund money paid.

Do I pay if I was in a motor vehicle accident?

If you are Medicare ineligible, and do not have an approved insurance claim or cannot provide all the accident details including the driver at fault required to qualify for motor accident funding, you must pay for treatment. If it is later found that you have an approved insurance claim or qualify for motor accident funding, we will refund money paid.

What is a reciprocal healthcare agreement?

Australia has reciprocal healthcare agreements with eleven countries. The agreements provide visitors to Australia with subsidised medical treatment.

You may qualify for subsidised treatment if you live in one of these countries and are visiting Australia on an eligible temporary visa.

Visitors on a retiree visa (Subclass 405 or 410) are usually not covered under the agreements.

I am from a country with a reciprocal healthcare agreement. What do I need to do?

To show that you qualify for treatment under a reciprocal healthcare agreement, we need copies of both your:

- passport
- visa grant notice

We will ask for these documents at every presentation.

If you do not bring these, you must acknowledge the cost of treatment at Medicare ineligible rates and pay for treatment.

If you later provide the copies of these documents as evidence you qualify for treatment under the agreements, we will refund money paid.
